Chastity Davis Profile:

Chastity Davis is a mixed heritage woman of First Nations and European descent. She is a proud member of the Tla'amin (Sliammon) Nation, located in Powell River just off the beautiful Sunshine Coast of BC. Chastity strives to keep her sacred First Nations culture, traditions, and values incorporated into her modern day life. Chastity feels it is her life purpose to facilitate the building of bridges between Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal people and has dedicated her professional and personal life to do so.

Chastity has worked with 100+ First Nation communities in British Columbia as well as many other Indigenous tribes in North America. She has also worked with several corporations; To name a few: BC Hydro, TransCanada, New Gold, CTV, and The Refinery Leadership Partners, and New Relationship Trust. Chastity has a proven ability to build strong, meaningful, and productive relationships between Aboriginal communities and corporations.

Chastity is an active volunteer and donates countless hours of her time to building relationships between Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal peoples in Canada. Chastity is a Director of the Minerva Foundation for BC Women's Board. Chastity serves as the Chair for the Minister's Advisory Council for Aboriginal Women (MACAW) which advises the provincial Minister of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (and his provincial colleagues) on the strength and resiliency of Aboriginal women and their children.

Chastity has been asked to speak at several local, provincial, national, and international events about the importance of building relationships between Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal peoples. Chastity's work is rooted in the notion of reconciliation and she strongly believes that this is the path forward for indigenous and non-indigenous peoples around the world.

Chastity will be complete her Master of Arts in Intercultural and International Communications in Summer 2015; She has a Bachelor of Arts in Professional Communication from Royal Roads University and a Diploma in Marketing Management & Professional Sales from BCIT. Chastity is a recipient of the "Founders Award" from Royal Roads University which is awarded to one student in the graduating year that exemplifies the qualities of leadership, sustainability, and personal development. Chastity was also nominated for the Royal Roads University Alumni Excellence Award.

Intercultural Dialogue: Fostering Connection Through A Traditional Indigenous Lens

Following Monique Gray-Smith's Fostering Resiliency morning session, the afternoon session will focus on deepening the learning of the History of Aboriginal People's of Canada, as well as dialogue about how it connects to individuals, businesses, and the larger Canadian and International communities. This part of the day session is the active and participatory learning piece. It requires everyone's energy and expertise in the room to co-create a safe and engaging environment to have meaningful conversations that move the dialogue of reconciliation forward. The co-creation of the dialogue is rooted in traditional Indigenous ways of connecting, sharing, and learning.
